

A Modern Mountain Home in Montana Is for Sale for $7 Million

A rustic-chic retreat on the slopes of Big Sky has unobstructed alpine views

TEXT BY JENNIFER TZESES · PHOTOGRAPHY BY WHITNEY KAMMAN · Posted December 7, 2015

This rustic-chic retreat on the slopes of Big Sky has unobstructed alpine views.

Stats:

4 Bedrooms

4.5 Baths

4,748 sq. ft.

$7 million

Built in 2010, this rustic-chic residence in Big Sky, Montana, sits on two acres and has direct access to the private SKI runs of the Yellowstone Club. It's a one-hour drive from both Yellowstone National Park and Bozeman.

---

Subscribe to Architectural Digest and get the AD100 issue – guaranteed →

---

The two-story home features stained-concrete floors and oak ceilings. In the living room, walls of glass offer unobstructed views of Lone Peak and the Spanish Peaks. A three-sided fireplace is the centerpiece of the room. The dining room, kitchen, master suite, and media room are also on the main floor. Two guest suites and a bunk room are located on the lower level.

Covered walkways connect the home to the garage, office, and deck, which showcases a cantilevered hot tub with staggering views of mountains and ski runs.

Contact: YC Realty, 406-995-4900; yellowstoneclub.com

Mountain views form the backdrop of this alpine retreat.

The glass-walled dining room looks out on the mountains.

The spacious kitchen has a breakfast bar.

A floating staircase lends an interesting architectural element to the interior.

Covered walkways join various parts of the home.

The cantilevered hot tub affords a soaking experience with unobstructed views.